

What is Claimed is:

1. A simple artificial implantable dental, comprising:

an abutment portion which supporting a restoration tooth; and an implantation portion and a normal conical portion located between the 5 abutment portion and the implantation portion.

2. A simple artificial implantable dental, as recited in claim 1, wherein said implantation portion is provided with male threads.
3. A simple artificial implantable dental, as recited in claim 1, wherein said normal conical portion further having a stepped portion whereby said stepped portion is 10 located between a bottom edge of said normal conical portion and a top edge of said implantation portion.
4. A compound artificial implantable dental, comprising:

an abutment body has an upper portion for supporting a restoration tooth, and a lower portion which is fastened with the implantation body; and 15 an implantation body which have a top, an outer surface, and a bottom, said top being provided with a retaining slot which is provided at a bottom thereof with a threaded hole, said outer surface being provided with a normal conical surface.

5. A compound artificial implantable dental, as recited in claim 4, wherein said implantation body is provided in a lower portion thereof with male threads.
- 20 6. A compound artificial implantable dental, as recited in claim 4, wherein said implantation body is further provided with a stepped portion whereby said stepped portion is located between a bottom edge of said normal conical surface and said outer surface.
7. A compound artificial implantable dental, comprising:

25 an abutment body is provided in the center with an axial through hole, and provided with an upper portion and a lower portion, wherein said upper portion is provided for supporting a restoration tooth;

an implantation body which have a top, an outer surface, and a bottom, the top being provided with a slot which is provided in a bottom thereof with a fastening hole whereby the outer surface is provided with a normal conical surface; and

5 a fastener for fastening the abutment body with the implantation body.

8. A compound artificial implantable dental, as recited in claim 7, wherein said implantation body is provided in a lower portion with male threads.

9. A compound artificial implantable dental, as recited in claim 7, wherein said implantation body further provided with a stepped portion located between a 10 bottom edge of said normal conical surface and said outer surface of said implantation body.